KANAGAWA UNIVERSITY of Human Services

1. Main purpose and number of students

1.1 Main purpose

We at Kanagawa University of Human Services encourage international students, with at least a bachelor's degree (or an equivalent degree) with excellent grades from overseas universities and other higher education institutions, to apply to the Graduate School of Health Innovation (hereinafter SHI) by offering the scholarship exclusively for international students.

SHI aims to develop human resources who can innovate social systems and technologies in the fields related to healthcare, medical care, and social welfare.

The purpose of our scholarship is to provide financial support for new foreign students who are going to come to Japan solely for enrolling in an SHI program, and hence to help advance research activities during the enrollment period in Japan.

The decisions for this international student scholarship are made separately from those for an SHI graduate program. If the applicant is not accepted by an SHI program, this international student scholarship will cover the entrance examination fee only.
